ALLOW FOOD TO SPOIL TO HOLD UP ROBBERY PRICES

Dispatches from New York this week reported that vast quantities of freshly-grown vegetables are being dumped at the city's markets, with the object of maintaining prices, which are so high that they are beyond the reach of the pocket-books of millions of Gotham's families.

The same wanton destruction of food apparently is underway in other parts of the country.

Congressman Norris Poulson (Rep. Calif.), placed in the Congressional Record a letter from a constituent in Los Angeles complaining that in that city and in San Francisco great quantities of oranges, squash, tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce, parsnips, corn, turnips and other vegetables are being carried away from wholesale markets to hog farms.

The letter declared that prices are extortionate and that "this appalling waste of food" is designed to keep them that way.

Any person or group of persons guilty of such wanton food waste in critical war times in order to make big profits is not a fit citizen of our country and is to be classed as a traitor and should be given the same punishment meted out to any traitor or saboteur of our country.

Impressive Services Mark Unveiling of Tinley Honor Roll

A very large crowd witnessed the impressive and colorful ceremony held in Tinley Park Sunday afternoon in connection with the unveiling of a plaque or honor roll containing the names of 111 young men and women of the Tinley Park community now in the armed forces of our country.

A line of march formed at the English Bros. garage on Oak Park Avenue and marched thru the village and back on Oak Park Avenue to the American Legion Post park near the Rock Island depot where the plaque has been placed on the site formerly occupied by the Legion Post cannon which was scrapped during the scrap metal drive.

The unveiling program was opened with Brown Campbell, Tinley Park co-ordinator in charge as chairman. The ceremony was opened with the invocation offered by Father Fitzpatrick of the St. George Catholic church of Tinley Park.

The Tinley Park American Legion and VFW color guards presented the post and national colors and a large service flag with a star for each one of the young men and women in service from Tinley Park was held by Wm. Dunn in the Navy and Martin Uthe who has just entered the Army.

Four Tinley Park mothers, Mrs. Joseph Greco, Mrs. Otto Lehman, Mrs. John Manzke and Mrs. Raymond Mason were given especial honors and unveiled the very beautiful plaque. A significant feature was that each of these mothers has three sons in the service. One of the honored mothers, Mrs. Lehman has four sons in the service.

Appropriate remarks were given by Commander Edward Cupp of the VFW post, Commander Raymond Mason of the American Legion Post, Elbert Elmore member of the local Civilian Defense Group, Chas. Wallin of the Citizens Service Committee.

Following the addresses the plaque was presented to the village of Tinley Park on behalf of the local Civilian Defense Group who sponsored the plaque and Wesley Stemm a member of the Tinley Park village board accepted the gift on behalf of the village. He represented Mayor Charles A. Niemann who was unable to attend.

An impressive flag raising ceremony was observed attended by a rifle salute and sounding of "To The Colors". In the firing squad was Kenneth Carlson a service man in the present war.

The ceremonies were concluded with the singing of the national anthem and the benediction by Rev. Albert Buddenhagen of the Zion Lutheran church.

The Blue Island Legion Post Drum and Bugle Corp furnished the musical portion of the program. Several girl baton twirlers accompanied the corp.

The twenty civic and service organizations of Tinley Park participated in the affair. Raymond Jacobs is to be commended for his fine arrangement of the parade. A very stirring and out of the ordinary feature was the appearance of a number of big planes which circled over Tinley Park while the plaque unveiling and flag raising ceremonies were in progress. These planes flew quite low.

The plaque is a very superb work of art designed and built by Henry Boldt of Tinley Park. It is about ten feet long and 7 feet high. It is in the national colors and glass columns permits it to be illuminated at night. This is one of the finest honor rolls to be found for many miles around and is something Tinley Park can justly be very proud of.

ARMY OFFICER TELLS FRANKFORT LIONS ABOUT SHELL MANUFACTURE

The Frankfort Lions Club enjoyed a delicious chicken dinner and the social program in connection with the observance of "guest night" Tuesday evening in the parlors of the Frankfort Methodist church. Each member had been asked to invite a friend and as a result there was a large attendance.

Community singing was enjoyed followed with special numbers by the well known Kiwanis male quartet of Chicago Heights. Following the social side of the gathering a very interesting feature followed.

Captain Paul D. Cooper of the Kankakee Ordnance Plant gave a highly illuminating talk on the manufacture of such explosives as TNT and other types and gave a detailed account of the intricacies involved in the manufacture of explosives and shells. He had brought along a 75 mm shell and casing and showed how a shell is loaded and explained in detail the mechanism which fires a shell. A fact not known generally is that TNT is a rather hard explosive to explode and it takes 5 different kinds of explosives in a shell to set off the TNT charge. Capt. Jones gave an account of the various types of shells and bombs made and for the different purposes for which they are used. At the close of his talk the meeting was thrown open to a question and answer period. Among the questions asked and answered were what is Ack-ack? Flack? These are shells used in anti aircraft fire and burst similar to shrapnel.

The Lion's Club's new president, Herbert Lambrecht voiced the hope the guests had enjoyed the dinner and program and extended an invitation to have them join the club. New members are always welcome.

He has served at various times as instructor at the Northern Missouri Military Institute; Central Wesleyan College, lecturer and instructor on Boy Psychology at the Chicago Training school.

During the last World War he served as special chaplain in the armed forces from 1917 to 1920 and as a member of the Social Service Committee and War Work Council of the Rock River Conference. He was president of the Will and Grundy County Methodist Preachers Association in 1920 to 1924. He has always been interested in boy life and is a former scout Master and special Field Scout and was given the B. S. A., Silver Beaver Award in 1940. Lightning Bolt Destroys Buildings On Homer Farm

The large barn on the Wayne McClure farm or better known in Homer as the Robert Storm farm was struck by lightning Friday afternoon. The barn, and all other buildings with the exception of the house were entirely destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, Jr., and family reside on this farm and they suffered heavy loss as they had the week before baled and put into the barn, approximately 2300 bales of alfalfa hay. The barn was used as a tool shed also and thus many pieces of farm machinery such as drill, oat binder, drags, wagons, grinder, tractor plows and other implements large and small so necessary to operate a large farm were burned.

Fortunately most of the stock was out of the barn, only one calf, two pigs and 70 chickens were consumed by the fire.

Junior had had the oil barrels filled a few days previous and when the blaze struck these barrels a black smoke screen, (so dense that the roaring flames south of the screen, could not be seen) was thrown over the place.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Catcher Morgan for the Oak Lawn team was also hurt in a collision with another player.

DOAN'S PILLS

IT'S around the halfway mark in the two big league pennant races. Looking back, there have been any number of unusual features, beyond all April predictions when the 16 clubs were struggling through the coldest spring in many years.

If any one should care for our top nomination from the ranks of the unexpected, it would be the showing of the Phillies under the smart handling of Bucky Harris.

Second choice, on the bizarre line, would belong to Washington's Senators who were not expected last April to be within 12 games of the Yankees at this sultry summer spot.

The third nomination would go to the Dodgers who have been crowding the Cardinals most of the way with a pitching staff that has been packed with kinks, off and on.

Back around the middle of April, when there was still frost in the cold winds, we figured the Cardinals and Yankees had enough material to pull away from the two packs by early June.

Both had lost many stars—Terry Moore, Johnny Beasley, Enos Slaughter, Joe DiMaggio, Red Ruffing, Phil Rizzuto and others, but both still had enough left to take charge.

So far it hasn't happened that way.

The Real Miracle

If there is any such thing as a miracle, the award must go to the Phillies.

They looked moth eaten in 1942. They looked even worse as they faced the present scramble.

When Bill Cox bought this franchise there was a general belief that he would have to wait until the war was over to get any part of his money back. After all, you can't eat a franchise, or play it in the infield or outfield.

Bets were made that the Phillies in their 77 home games wouldn't draw out 250,000 customers.

But the Phillies have already passed their 1942 total in the way of admission and they are sure to double the turnstile count of other years.

While the Yankees with a number of star veterans back, plus a good looking pitching staff, were rated well above all American league opposition, few gave the senators any first division chance.

The old slogan was again in evidence—"Washington—first in war, first in peace—next to last in the American league."

The Browns and the Cleveland Indians were supposed to be on Yankee heels.

Only Connie Mack and Clark Griffith refused to concede the Yankees any winning margin.

Manager Bluege came popping in with such pitchers as Candini and Carrasquel, some pretty fair hitting, and a club of hustlers.

So far no managers have turned in a better job than Bucky Harris and Ossie Bluege, both old Washington stars.

In some way these two have side-stepped the well-known "Washington Muddle," applying to everything else. Apparently outside of General Marshall and his staff, Bluege has put out the best job in Washington.

Another High Spot

There has been another high spot at the halfway mark—a high spot from a low spot.

This is the sad picture of Cubs and Giants battling for the tail-end title. To have the Senators and Phillies up there, punching with both hands, as Giants and Cubs trail the entire field, is something no one has yet seen, at least as far as we can recall any such National league turn.

The Cubs, at least, with what looked to be a good pitching staff, have been the main shock to most of the soothsayers. After Johnny Mize and other Giant mates departed, Mel Ott wasn't given much of a chance to go anywhere, except downhill.

The two races have been more interesting and have produced better baseball than many expected with so many stars absent in service uniforms.

But for all that the fan crop has seen good baseball and two of the closest pennant races in many years.

Baseball will have a little trouble through the rest of the 1943 season.

The Unbeaten

All the super horses of late years have been beaten once or more. This includes Man o' War, Count Fleet, Alsab, Seabiscuit and Whirlaway.

But there are still five unbeaten horses in the records that go well back, according to Clem McCarthy.

Here is Clem's list—

Norfolk—1864.

Asteroid—1864.

Tremont—1886.

El Reo Rey—1889.

Colin—15 races—1907 and 1909.

GUNDER HAGG, Sweden's middle distance record holder, may not be universally acclaimed for his diplomacy, but no one denies that he is one of the greatest runners of this era.

An unfortunate statement was accredited to Hagg before he left Sweden for the United States—to the effect that he wanted to "remain a neutral runner so I can tour the so-called Axis nations later."

Whether or not the statement was made by Hagg is debatable. But the fact that he ran in Chicago with the proceeds going to the army air force aid society is a matter of record.

GUNDER HAGG

And actions mean considerably more than quotations.

The Ghost of Gavle is similar to the race horse, Count Fleet, in one respect. He has run himself completely out of competition. Hagg is thoroughly unorthodox about his running. He never had a track coach and won't listen to instructions. He never ran in school. He broke world's records before most of his countrymen knew he could run. He doesn't warm up for a race, explaining that "I need all my energy for the race. Too many runners wear themselves out warming up."

World's Record

On the record, Hagg is the greatest runner of all time. For the sake of comparison here are the old records together with Hagg's:

Hagg's Record	Old Record
1,500 meters 3:45.8	3:47.5—Loveclack
One mile 4:04.6	4:06.4—Wooderson
2,000 meters 5:11.8	5:16.8—Roman
2,000 meters 8:01.2	8:09.4—Kalarne
Two miles 8:47.8	8:53.2—Maki
Three miles 13:32.4	13:43.4—Maki
5,000 meters 15:58.2	16:08.5—Maki

Despite Hagg's remarkable records, he doesn't run by the stopwatch. He doesn't allow anyone to time his workouts and doesn't listen to time announcements while running his race. He follows no set procedure. Sometimes he sets the pace. Sometimes he comes from behind at the halfway point and once in a while waits for the stretch.

Hagg doesn't even train to pattern. He takes off through the woods and seems to prefer rough, hilly ground on the sound theory that it makes the cinder track seem so much smoother and gives him special exhilaration for the race itself.

Cobb's Method

The great Ty Cobb used to run around with lead in the toes of his shoes before a game so when he removed it, as play started, his feet were light as feathers. It's the same principle upon which batters swing two or three bats, usually one loaded with shot, before going to the plate, so the one eventually used will feel light by contrast.

Hagg is quite a different runner than Paavo Nurmi, the flying Finn. Nurmi ran to a stopwatch, looking at one on his wrist as he pounded the cinders.

Paavo spent considerable time warming up and practicing. He was more of a "heel pounder," hitting hard on his heels. Hagg runs loosely on his toes.

The thin Swede set three of his world's records the first time he ran the distance. He wasn't at his best form when he ran his introductory race in the United States, but he finished 40 yards ahead of Greg Rice, America's pride and joy.

In Chicago, Hagg defeated Gil Dodds of Boston by 20 yards in the third fastest outdoor two mile race ever run in this country. Hagg's time was 9:02.8, exceptionally fast considering the softness of the track.

How It Happened

It should be remembered that Rice had won 65 straight races prior to his defeat at the hands of Hagg. Asked how it happened, Hagg replied:

"It was no easy race. It was hard. I had heard so much about Rice's finishing spurt, I was scared. I thought I might fail Sweden. I could see the headlines: 'Another foreigner fizzles.' Forty yards is not too much."

But spectators were still surprised by his easy victory.

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON THE COST OF DRINKING

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 21:18-21; Proverbs 23:20, 21; 1 Corinthians 6:9-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?—1 Corinthians 6:9.

Billions of dollars—how many we cannot say—make up the annual cost of liquor to America in dollars and cents. Terrifying as it is, that stupendous waste is but a drop in the bucket compared with the moral and spiritual degradation, the sorrow and suffering, the poverty and distress, which must be added into our liquor bill.

For it is not only a matter of dollars, but of blood and tears, or destroyed usefulness, lost virtue, wrecked homes, and so on and on and on. We go right on paying the bill, allowing ourselves to be misled by clever propaganda, and skillfully manipulated statistics—or it may be our sheer indifference. When will America awaken!

Our lesson faces us with the cost of this despicable traffic in the life of the individual to the social order, and in the light of eternity.

I. The Personal Cost (Deut. 21: 18-21).

Liquor destroys individuals relentlessly, rapidly, and effectively. Have we forgotten that fact?

The passage in Deuteronomy presents a drastic remedy for a dreadful situation. Drink and gluttony were recognized as the deadly instrument which would bring a boy to the place where he was incorrigible. Stubborn, rebellious, and disobedient, his parents were to bring him to the elders for a final judgment.

If one thinks the penalty too harsh, he must remember that it was established in the early days of Israel when it was necessary for God to use such drastic remedies to stamp out incipient evil.

It must be remembered that in ancient Greece weak children were left out to die, and in Rome a father could at will put to death even a grown up son.

The point of this scripture for us is that a life of debauchery (and it can start with just a glass of wine) leads to the ultimate destruction of life. It is far too high a cost to pay for a sinful indulgence.

II. The Social Cost (Prov. 23: 20, 21).

Drunkness and gluttony lead to poverty and rags. The intemperate man cannot keep up with the high cost of supplying his growing appetite. Even as he tries to satisfy its insatiable demand, it also renders him unfit to earn a living.

So the vicious circle works its way around, and stops not until the drunkard totters off in his rags, unless perchance some loved one or friend takes care of him.

Do we not all recall how families in our own communities have been ruined and become charges upon the county or charitable organizations because of the destruction wrought by a father who was a winebibber. Not only does it bring poverty upon families, but it reduces able and gifted men to shambling wrecks and thus deprives society of the benefit of their lives and service.

A present-day illustration is the unsolved problem of absenteeism for days after pay day in our essential industries. Again we say the cost is altogether too high; let us get rid of this monster before it destroys us!

III. The Eternal Cost (1 Cor. 6: 9-11).

Money lost is serious. Life lost is far more serious. But the saddest cost of all is the eternal damnation of the drinker's soul.

We quote from Dr. Horace Martin these stirring and meaningful words: "It is my calm judgment that any man who names the name of Christ should take an attitude of horror and disgust at the liquor traffic and the use of liquor as a beverage. There are at least three places in the New Testament where the Bible says that no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God."

"If any man takes that statement seriously he must think twice before he refers to the use of liquor in a joking manner, or in any way condones the use of alcohol as a beverage" (Lesson Commentary).

Drunkness is a foul and sinful thing, classed by the apostle Paul with the lowest of human vices. Review the list as it is given in verses 9 and 10 (and by the way notice the other sins mentioned there), and place drunkness in its proper classification.

Call it what it really is—sin, and then call on the One who can save from sin. You will then be washed from your sin, sanctified, and justified in the name of the Lord Jesus (v. 11). In Christ there is hope for the drunkard. A spiritual revival is the real answer to the liquor problem. Let us seek to promote it even as we at the same time give ourselves to an intelligent and constructive battle against this destructive force in the life of our nation.

Cleopatra Was Pioneer In Painting Fingernails

The flapper of not-so-many years back didn't start the vogue for painted fingernails. The real pioneer in that field was Cleopatra. Aspasia, girl friend of Pericles, also tinted her nails. As a matter of fact, a husband 2,300 years ago "raised Ned" with his wife because she used cosmetics so extravagantly.

Whoever it is that gets credit for scolding girls for powdering their noses in public, is just an interloper. Ovid said many centuries ago: "A statue is never shown until it is finished."

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers. Send your order to:

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave ½ inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about ¼ turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

DO NOT TURN FILLED JARS UPSIDE DOWN

Dear Friends:

Must take time and write you a few lines to let you know how I am going along. Well I am getting along fine. I must thank you for the nice box I got from you some time ago and sure was glad to get it. It sure takes a long time for letters to get back and forth. Well I suppose you know by this time where we are at. We are someplace in north Africa, that is about all I am with where we are on at. It is very hot in the day time but at nite gets very cool, and some places are very pretty and some places it does not look so good. Some of the people are very nice but some are very filthy and the cats are very good, better than I ever thought at would be the only thing. Well there sure is not alot a person can write about, so must close for this time, must thank all the friends for the good work they are doing for the boys in service.

Dear Friends:

I received a most welcome letter from Lulu Fulton Rogers a few days ago and it sure was a swell letter. It was greatly appreciated and a million thanks. I just got thru playing a few games of ping pong and won three out of five. Pretty fair for an amateur don't you think? I still receive the Tinley Times regular and it sure is swell to read about all the folks back home. I can't think of much to write so will have to close again. I just like to drop you a few lines and leave you know everything is all right. I would like to take this opportunity to say hello to all my friends in Tinley and God Bless you all.

This is May 22 now and this is as far as I got writing to you. This afternoon we had off. The first time for a long time. I am still getting the Times and glad to receive a letter from Sgt. Wm. E. Siemsen and am trying to see him the first of this month. Hope to see him in London. Thanks loads for the Easter card and gifts, hope to repay all of you some time. That is all for now. Dear Friends:

Received your very lovely letter today, thanks for all the good wishes and also thanks a million for all the lovely boxes you people have sent me. The Times comes quite regular, in fact I look forward to getting it each week. I am stationed at a very lovely camp right now which is situated right on a small lake and is surrounded by palm trees. The weather down here is wonderful, of course it gets kinda hot during the day but it cools off in the evening which makes sleeping quite comfortable. I get about 3 hours of flying in a day now. I have 30 hours of flying time in. We are learning air tactics now, spins, stalls, loops, chandelles, lazy eights, slow rolls snap rolls. I passed my 20 hr. check the other day and now have to pass a 40 and 60 hr. check. They washed out 107 cadets of our class of 233 on our 10 hr. check and now are washing them out by the dozens on this 20 hr. check. We also get 3 hrs. of ground school a day and some in instrument flying. It is just about time for lights out, so I think I will hit the hay, as 5:30 in the morning rolls around pretty fast.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

Pvt. James N. Wyman, Sqd. 24, Bar. 66, M.A.B. M.A.TTC, Norman, Okla.

Aviation Cadet Raymond M. Mason Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Mason of Tinley Park has reported to the Couthland, Alabama Army Air Force Basic Flying School for the third stage of training as a cadet pilot.

This base, only until recently the site of flourishing cotton fields, is alive today with the roar of Uncle Sam's planes flying overhead.

The BT-13 which a cadet learns to handle here is a faster and heavier plane than the one which he flew at Primary school and, therefore, requires a wider knowledge of all aerial sciences. His varied course of training includes instrument flying, night soloing, and a thorough study and application of aerial navigation.

COOK COUNTY WAR MEAT COMMITTEE MEETS

Under the direction of the State War Board July 14, 1943, the Cook County War Board held the first meeting of the Cook County War Meat Committee for organization and instructions on the War Food Administration.

So far the committeemen appointed by the War Board in this county are: Henry L. Moehling, chairman, Palatine, with J. Fred Meyer Arlington Heights, Henry Hemeier, Palatine, Wm. Lister, Lockport, Lyle Aulwurm Blue Island and Paul T. Sanders, Palos Park as members of the committee.

After reviewing the various duties of the committee, it was apparent that the purpose of this committee is to headup the licensing of livestock slaughterers in this county in cooperation with other counties to the end that the average livestock slaughterer will go back to his 1941 base of operations. Up until this time the War Board has issued certificates to slaughterers without opportunity to examine thoroughly into their operations. However, from July 15 on this committee may review the operations of livestock slaughterers and determine his base for their future slaughter program.

It is quite obvious the average slaughterer had a much heavier killing program in 1942 than in the normal year of 1941. Permits will be largely based on 1941 and in order to get a permit a slaughterer must establish, from some kind of public records, the basis for his operations. It goes without saying most slaughterers who are requesting permits are basing their requests on their 1942 operations which obviously cannot be accepted if the meat program is to succeed. There are a few instances where other figures than 1941 can be used, but these are very exceptional.

The threat to the even distribution of supplies of meat to the civilian population and particularly to our armed forces overseas depends upon the 1943 and 1944 slaughter program. These committees have been set up with the purpose of stamping out the black market and to give every one his fair share of meat.

The meat slaughter program was changed over from the OPA to the USDA during the last days of Chester Davis' administration as Food Director, states Carl Bornt, chairman of the Cook County USDA War Board. We realize the enforcement of the meat order in Cook County is going to be one of the most difficult in this state. However, we have selected as good a committee as we possibly can, and we have the confidence that Mr. Moehling is a conscientious citizen and as chairman of the Meat Board he will discharge every duty that comes to him and his committee in performing the obligations of this program. We bespeak the cooperation of all slaughterers who will do a legitimate business, and all citizens in support of the task that this committee is undertaking. The committees work is not to investigate or police, however, any slaughterer who is suspected of operating without license should be reported to the committee and in turn the proper police authorities will be notified to investigate and institute such actions through the court as the law provides in stamping out black meat markets.

Worship Service at 10:45. Sermon subject: "The Stewardship of Prayer." It has been proven beyond any doubt that one hour in worship in the house of God paves the way for a week of success and victorious living. If you are not worshipping elsewhere come and enjoy our beautiful Sanctuary with us.

Church School 9:30 a. m. Mr. Percy L. Jochum, General Supt. Mrs. S. D. Gollahan, Youth Supt. Mrs. Arthur J. Brandau, Primary Supt. Vacation days make it hard to keep up the attendance in the church school. We parents need to encourage regularity in the church school.

Official board meets the first Thursday of the month at the church parlors 8 p. m. It is important that all the members attend. Woman's Society for Christian Service meets the first Wednesday of the month in the afternoon 1:30 p. m.

The Youth Fellowship have suspended their regular meetings until the first of September. The New Lenox Youth Fellowship Institute meets August first. The cost for the entire week will be $9 and a good time is promised to all who enroll and stay all thru the period. See the pastor at once if you want to go.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 18.

The Golden Text was, "Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it" (Proverbs 16: 22). Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent" (John 17: 1,3).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "This is life eternal," says Jesus, "is, not shall be; and then he defines everlasting life as a present knowledge of his Father and of himself, the knowledge of Love, Truth and Life. . . . The way is straight and narrow which leads to the understanding that God is the only Life. It is a warfare with the flesh, in which we must conquer sin, sickness, and death, either here or hereafter, — certainly before we can reach the goal of Spirit, or life in God" (P. 410,324).

The U. S. Navy Seebees Go to Work

The following article appearing in a London, England publication, was received from Ira Cowan of Palos Park:

By C. T. Barlow
Stars and Stripes Navy Writer

A BRITISH PORT, June 2.—The pile driver's hull was half full of water and she listed heavily to the port side. Gear was scattered in a tangled snarl over the deck and the boiler was in a helluva shape. The pilings, unloaded for the job, were as crooked as a dog's hind leg, and there was no supply of better timbers. 'Looks like we're sure startin from scratch', a grizzled CPO remarked as he looked over the forlorn craft before starting work on a new Navy dock somewhere on the coast.

Forty-eight hours from the time the first man started to work the pile driver was rigged, flues turned, steam up, cables spliced and strung. The big machine was ready to hammer down anchor piling for a new pier.

That's the SeaBee style of getting a job done in ETO or anywhere else. Rough as corncocks, tough as boots, ready to fight at the drop of a hat, or ready to tackle the toughest construction job that can be devised: that's the reputation being made by one of the older SeaBee contingents now in the British Isles.

Marine railways, tank farms, pipelines, living quarters, docks or what-have-you are handled with production line efficiency.

Although there are a number of men in this outfit who are from the upper age bracket they were accorded the same treatment in boot camp that was handed out to their younger shipmates. All SeaBees are trained by the U. S. Marine Corps in the modern methods of warfare. Advanced training is given prior to the embarkation of a SeaBee battalion for foreign service.

They've Done Everything
The experience cards of a SeaBee battalion would turn a peace time construction official green with envy.

Be it bricklayers, welders, concrete men, expert diesel mechanics, steamfitters, truck drivers, crane operators, bulldozer operators, cat skimmers or any of the other skilled trades needed for a big time construction job, they are on the rolls of the Construction Battalion. These same men—experts with years of experience in their trades—also have been trained to handle an '03, M1 or a BAR with almost as much skill as they handle the tools of their civilian life.

Construction Battalions are self-sustaining mobile units. They carry their own maintenance and supply divisions in addition to the construction companies. They can move into an established base and operate or improve it. Or they can move into an uninhabited island and erect a base complete with airport, runways, fuel tanks, quarters, electric lights, and generators, galleys and refrigerators. Their job is not only to build but to protect while they build and to hold after they have built.

Surplus of Pets

The officer in charge of the ETO SeaBees is confronted with a multitude of problems, but the latest to bring down official ultimatum was the surplus of pets accumulated at the base living quarters.

According to scuttlebutt rumor, he was willing to tolerate 15 or 20 dogs whose parentage was unrecorded by any kennel association. And of course, CB, the cat, was a permanent fixture with the outfit so a little company for her was all right. Even a goat didn't cause any official reaction. But when he found a member of his command bidding on a donkey at an auction sale, a mascot rule was placed in force.

CB is a cat with true SeaBee personality. Rank or rate means nothing to her when selecting a sack for her siesta. She is usually billeted in the neighbourhood of the galley, so that food is no problem and the only complaint she has for Navy life is that she has to go to sea at times.

An Atlantic crossing just about proved CB's undoing. She refused food during a bad five-day storm and was handicapped because she was built wrong for rail hanging, a construction job that even her SeaBee mates couldn't alter. She fell back on six or seven of her lives, however, and wound up on the dock a weaker but wiser kitten.

A SeaBee bull session is an insight on the history of recent construction jobs in the United States, Mexico, Canada and Central America. Boulder Dam, Grand Coulee Dam, Fort Leonard Wood, Willow Run and dozens of major North and South American engineering projects have representatives now on the job with the SeaBees in the ETO.

'Hell! This ain't mud! Why, up on the Fort Peck job—' is the way the typical session starts. Nothing is as cold, or as wet, or as tough as some other experience of bygone days.

Much to the discomfort of the older and higher rated men, a rated specialist in a certain line, often will find himself on another job.

An electrician's mate fills in on a concrete gang because he happens to have had previous experience in concrete pouring.

A machinist's mate trained as a diesel mechanic will find himself on the business end of a welding torch in a pipe line ditch when welders are needed and the work of a mechanic is slack. If a ship's cook can run a side boom, and a side boom operator is needed, the battalion belly robber finds himself in new surroundings.

The musicians of the outfit banded together for protection. After intense growing pains, there emerged a snappy marching band and an eight piece jibe orchestra, now in constant demand for dances at Red Cross clubs. The 30-piece band is part of regular reviews and inspections.

Finally, they're not a hell of a lot different from any bunch of line company Joes. Viz., this more or less verbatim report on a job here:

'If they think I'm going to put up with this &$|||? every $&$.&? day in the week, I'll tell them to blow it &$*!! $&$?'

Producing FOOD FOR VICTORY on the Farms of Northern Illinois

On their 80-acre farm, located northeast of Streator, Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, with the help of one man, raise, dress and sell 12,000 chickens a year. They also maintain a laying flock of 350 hens.

HOW ELECTRICITY HELPS THE SNYDERS INCREASE POULTRY PRODUCTION

In answer to Uncle Sam's urgent call, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Snyder are putting all their effort into boosting food production. They are working longer and harder than ever before to help meet America's wartime needs.

And just as in peacetime, the Electric Power we supply is helping the Snyders and 35,000 other farm families of Northern Illinois. It pumps the water, grinds the feed, runs the portable motor. Performs countless chores to speed production of poultry and livestock, milk and produce. Indeed, in these times of food shortage and manpower shortage, Electric Power distinguishes itself as a 'fast friend of the farmer.'

A 2-h. p. motor, driven by electric power, grinds oats and corn together. Then a 1-h. p. motor does the job of mixing in the supplement for feed.

Her electric water heater, washing machine, ironer and other electric appliances save Mrs. Snyder hours of work in her home—time she puts to good use helping raise food for victory.

Mr. Snyder builds his own outdoor chick runs and houses. Electricity supplies the heat for the brooders which protect the baby chicks.

Electricity, too, has gone to war—don't waste it!

Dear Folks:

Well I guess it is about time that this reasonable facsimile of a soldier takes time out to write a line or two to let you know that I have been receiving the paper regular now for quite some time and it really does a fellow good to know what is going on in the old home town, which by the way is New Lenox. I was very glad to see the notice about my pal Roger Strassburg making with the monkey business over New Lenox and also to read about another of my buddies Orial Holt who seems to be quite a ways from home at this date. You know speaking of being far from home, these southern gals are really alright down here, after three years I think that I am finally getting to the point where I can understand them quite well. We are just 10 miles from Jackson, Miss. here and there is a town to fill the heart of any lonely soldier with delight and all that stuff, the only drawback is the fact that there is an Air base here consisting almost entirely of Dutch and Javanese cadets who seem to have priority on all the female population but all that can be overcome with the right technique. Well I have just about reached the end of my brief postscript as it is time to get back to work again, these prison camps have their share of work even if we are dodging bullets. Until next time I will say so long.

P.S. I have been using this darn machine for over a year now and it still makes mistakes.

Friends:

In addressing the salutation as friends, I have found that I can do that in all sincerity. These last few months have proven to me that I still have many, many friends back there in your town and my town than I have ever realized. Although I've spent very little time there in the past years, I feel I'm not forgotten.

In the past eight months I've received an innumerable number of cards and letters from so many people and up to this point, I've not once shown any appreciation for them. I want to thank you Mr. Semmler, all the various clubs and societies and individuals who have been so very thoughtful. I've been so busy I haven't had time for individual letters. I'm doing this haphazardly, but as an honest effort to establish myself again in your esteem.

This, I might add, as spur of the moment reaction received as I was reading one of your later editions. I've received many of them at irregular intervals, the latest being a May edition which to me scarcely has had time for the ink to dry. So it is with my paper, the Tribune, but any news, whether it be a month or three months old is news here, every bit of it.

Mine has been a rather interesting sojourn here in the Middle East. I've probably set something of a record, seeing so much in the shortest possible time. As for a detailed account, I'll have to let that rest at the present for some future fireside chat. Africa sounds in name alone, intriguing, but I'll grant you it isn't exactly a country club.

That's about everything from here at the present. Thanks many times to everyone again, it's been grand receiving.

Very truly yours,
BOB MAST.

WOMEN'S SERVICE CLUB NEWS
By Mrs. Leslie Clark.

Corp. Harold Balaz who spent the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Balaz left Wednesday for Los Angeles, Cal., to continue his studies. He had been attending school at Camp Davis, S. C.

Pvt. Mark Hotchkins has returned to Camp Blanding in Florida, after having enjoyed a 10-day furlough in the home of his brother.

The following is a letter received by Mrs. Florence Steele from her son Lt. Oliver Lauffer:

"I wrote a letter about three days ago, but just found out that it wasn't mailed as yet, so here goes another.

"I'm really very glad to hear that you received my air mail letter with the etchings. I thought you would probably like them. I left some films in London and if they turn out well, I will send them to you along with the negatives.

"I may be all wet, but I have a hunch that things should be rolling over here within the next couple of weeks. It can't be too long before this thing should be over, and what I mean, it can't be too soon to please me. Pys and I have been listening to the German propaganda lately and they played the song, "Jersey Bounce" on one of their programs. What I mean they really carry it out in a big way. They are really hollering about the way the R.A.F. and American Air Forces are bombing, so we must be doing some good.

"When I get home I think I'll take about a two weeks vacation.

Everyone over here was glad to hear the strike had ended, because it didn't just exactly set right with some of them when they and their buddies were out having guys shooting at them all day and then hearing that they weren't at least doing everything back home that they could to get this damn mess over with as soon as possible. These people over here have really went thru a hell-of-a-lot and you would have to go a long way to hear any of them hollering.

"I got a letter from Chuck Hostert and also from Art Hurley since they have been in the Army. It is really swell weather in England in the summer. I guess this is about the longest letter I've ever written, so will close till next time.

"Love, Ollie."

"Can we horn in here, Ollie? That was a swell letter, and we here in The News-Bulletin Office think of you all, but especially on Thursday night and Friday when we roll-out the paper to all you boys."

The following letter of thanks was received from the chairman of the USO in Joliet: "I wish to thank your Service Club for their generosity in providing cookies for the USO Center in the Union Station in Joliet. We feel the Center is much appreciated by the boys who certainly enjoy all the advantages supplied by generous donors.

"Tonight and Sunday evening, about thirty sailors came in, in a group and they were indeed glad to be served home-made cookies. These boys are from all over the United States and convoy boats from Seneca, Ill., to New Orleans.

"Thank you again for your contribution.

"Very truly yours,
"Mrs. H. R. Metz."

MY FRIEND
FLICKA

by MARY OHARA

THE STORY SO FAR: Ten-year-old Ken McLaughlin, given an opportunity to choose any yearling colt on his family's Wyoming ranch, picks the filly of a "loco" mare named Rocket. His choice merely adds to his father's anger, which is already aroused by the fact that Ken has failed his school work and has shown no sense of responsibility. It was Ken's mother who finally persuaded Captain McLaughlin that having the colt might be good for Ken, and the change in him has proved she was right. But Flicka, the filly, refuses to be captured. Caught once, she escapes and is caught again. To Ken she's wonderful. To McLaughlin she's just plain loco.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER X

Mindful that she had clawed her way out when she was corralled before, McLaughlin determined to keep her in the main corral into which the stable door opened. It had eight-foot walls of aspen poles. The rest of the yearlings must be maneuvered away from her.

Now that the fog had gone, the sun was scorching, and horses and men alike were soaked with sweat before the chasing was over and, one after the other, the yearlings had been driven into the other corral, and Flicka was alone.

She knew that her solitude meant danger, and that she was singled out for some special disaster. She ran frantically to the high fence through which she could see the other ponies standing, and reared and clawed at the poles; she screamed, whirled, circled the corral first in one direction, and then the other. And while McLaughlin and Ross were discussing the advisability of roping her, she suddenly espied the dark hole which was the open upper half of the stable door, and dove through it. McLaughlin rushed to close it, and she was caught—safely imprisoned in the stable.

But when they went up after dinner, there was no Flicka in the barn. One of the windows above the manger was broken, and the manger was full of pieces of glass.

Staring at it, McLaughlin gave a short laugh. He looked at Ken. "She climbed into the manger—see? Stood on the feed box, beat the glass out with her front hoofs and climbed through."

The window opened into the Six Foot Pasture. Near it was a wagon-load of hay. When they went around the back of the stable to see where she had gone they found her between the stable and the hay wagon, eating.

At their approach, she leaped away, then headed east across the pasture.

"If she's like her mother," said Rob, "she'll go right through the wire."

"Ay bet she'll go over," said Gus. "She yumps like a deer."

"No horse can jump that," said McLaughlin.

Ken said nothing because he could not speak. It was the most terrible moment of his life. He watched Flicka racing toward the eastern wire.

A few yards from it, she swerved, turned and raced diagonally south.

"It turned her! It turned her!" cried Ken, almost sobbing. It was the first sign of hope for Flicka. "Oh, Dad, she has got sense, she has! She has!"

Flicka turned again as she met the southern boundary of the pasture, again at the northern; she avoided the barn. Without abating anything of her whirlwind speed, following a precise, accurate calculation, and turning each time on a dime, she investigated every possibility. Then, seeing that there was no hope, she raced south towards the range where she had spent her life, gathered herself, and rose to the impossible leap.

Each of the men watching had the impulse to cover his eyes, and Ken gave a howl of despair.

Twenty yards of fence came down with her as she hurled herself through. Caught on the upper strands, she turned a complete somersault, landing on her back, her four legs dragging the wires down on top of her, and tangling herself in them beyond hope of escape.

"The wire!" cursed McLaughlin. "If I could afford decent fences—"

Ken followed the men miserably as they walked to the filly. They stood in a circle watching while she kicked and fought and thrashed until the wire was tightly wound and tangled about her, piercing and tearing her flesh and hide. At last she was unconscious, streams of blood running on her golden coat, and pools of crimson widening on the grass beneath her.

With the wire cutters which Gus always carried in the hip pocket of his overalls, he cut the wire away; and they drew her into the pasture, repaired the fence, placed hay, a box of oats, and a tub of water near her, and called it a day.

"I doubt if she pulls out of it," said McLaughlin briefly. "But it's just as well. If it hadn't been this way it would have been another. A loco horse isn't worth a darn."

Ken lay on the grass behind Flicka. One little brown hand was on her back, smoothing it, pressing softly, caressing. The other hand supported his head. His face hung over her.

His throat felt dry; his lips were like paper.

After a long while he whispered, "I didn't mean to kill you, Flicka—"

He counted her wounds. The two worst were a deep cut above the right rear hock, and a long gash in her chest that ran down into the muscle of the foreleg. Besides those, she was snagged with three-cornered tears through which the flesh pushed out, and laced with cuts and scratches with blood drying on them in rows of little black beads.

Ken wondered if the two bad cuts ought to be sewn up. He thought of Doc Hicks, and then remembered what his Dad had said: "You cost me money every time you turn around." No—Gus might do it—Gus was pretty good at sewing up animals. But Dad said best thing of all is usually to let them alone. They heal up.

The cut in Flicka's hind leg was awfully deep—

He put his head down against her and whispered again, "Oh, Flicka—I didn't mean to kill you."

Gus came out to him carrying a can of black grease.

"De Boss tole me to put some of dis grease on de filly's cuts, Ken—it helps heal 'em up."

Together they went over her carefully, putting a smear of the grease wherever they could reach a wound.

Gus stood looking down at the boy.

"D'you think she'll get well, Gus?"

"She might, Ken. I seen plenty horses hurt as bad as dot, and dey just as good as ever."

"Dad said—" But Ken's voice failed him when he remembered that his father had said she might as well die, because she was loco anyway.

The Swede stood a moment, his pale blue eyes, transparent and spiritual, looking kindly down at the boy; then he went on down to the barn.

Every trace of fog and mist had vanished, and the sun was blazing hot. Sweltering, Ken got up to take a drink of water from the bucket left for Flicka. Then, carrying handfuls of water in his small cupped hands, he poured it on her mouth. Flicka did not move, and once again Ken took his place behind her, his hand on her neck, his lips whispering to her.

After a while his head sank in exhaustion to the ground. . . . When evening came, and Nell had called Ken and had taken him by the hand and led him away, Flicka still lay without moving. Gently the darkness folded down over her.

Everybody went out to see Flicka right after breakfast and she stood against the fence as far away from them as she could get, while they discussed her injuries and her points, and whether she was more like Banner or Rocket—

Every remark made about her went through Ken as if it had been made about himself, but he too wanted to get a verdict and said, "She's got wonderful points, hasn't she, Dad?"

McLaughlin glared at Ken. "You've bought her, Ken. She's signed, sealed and delivered. Always choose them first, set your heart on them, buy them, and study their points afterwards—that way you'll be a first-rate horseman."

Ken's face got red and he looked away. Flicka, as if she felt the shame of her position, urged herself weakly along the fence in one direction, then turned and went in the other, trying to escape.

"I think she's a perfect little beauty," said Nell, who was there in her riding clothes, ready to give Rumba her workout.

"I want her moved down to the Calf Pasture," said McLaughlin.

"There's shade there, and grass, and the running stream of water. I'll be needing this pasture for the other horses."

"But the Calf Pasture's got only three strands of barbed wire," said Ken uneasily. "She might jump it and get away."

His father cast him one of his withering glances. "She won't jump it, Ken. She won't jump anything. Not for a long time yet."

"Besides," said Howard, "down there she'll have company. The calves and our colts with their mothers. She won't be alone."

"She'll be alone, all right," said McLaughlin with a short laugh; and Ken remembered the remark about a loco horse always being a Lone Wolf. "She'll keep to herself."

Nell and Ross went down to the stable to begin the work on the polo ponies, and the rest of them spread out in a fan behind Flicka and gently urged her toward the gate which Gus had opened into the Calf Pasture. She went a few steps at a time, then stopped to rest with her head hanging weakly.

Ken was glad she was in the Calf Pasture. It was here the boys trained their colts, here that the milch cows grazed at night and the calves in the daytime. And it was nearer the house. From the Green, from the terrace, from Ken's window, a great deal of the Calf Pasture could be seen, and it comforted Ken to think that Flicka was close by even when he couldn't be with her.

After dinner the men were loading the four Rodeo horses, Lady, Calico, Baldy and Buck, into the truck for McLaughlin to drive into Cheyenne.

Ken hurried to catch his father before the truck started, and found him in the cab.

"Dad!"

McLaughlin looked down. "Well?" he barked.

"Could I have a few forkfuls of hay for Flicka? She doesn't graze, I think she can't move around much."

Being asked for hay was like being asked for his right eye. McLaughlin's rule was, never feed hay when there's green grass growing.

He roared, "I told you you cost me money every time you turn around."

"Could I, Dad?" repeated Ken unflinchingly.

"All right," said McLaughlin. "Just for a few days." He leaned out the window of the truck, shouting for Gus, and Ken dashed away.

Ken carried the hay out to Flicka on a pitchfork. Every step he took for her was a joy. When Flicka saw him coming she tried to run away, and Ken said, "Oh, no, Flicka, don't run away, don't be afraid of me. I am Ken. And this is hay. You like it, Flicka—come and get some hay."

He stood some distance off, having placed the hay near the tub of water, and presently Flicka came limping back, smelled at it, and began to eat.

Ken lay with his elbow on the ground and his head propped on his hand, looking at Flicka. Now and then she would raise her head.

He knew she was better; her wounds were not bleeding today. They were swollen, and where the flesh had been pink and wet yesterday, today it was darker and dry. The scabs were forming.

Howard was doing his colts for him today too. Ken hated to leave Flicka even for an hour.

At milking time Tim went down to the cowbarn, carrying the milk pails. The bronco-buster, as usual, was with him, walking stiffly on his high heels, his thin legs in their pale blue jeans so bowed that a dog could have run through them.

They made a detour into the Calf Pasture to take a look at the filly.

"I'll be doggoned," said Ross calmly, with no expression at all on his small face, "she's beginning to look right pert."

He sat down on a rock, took out his cigarette papers and a bag of Bull Durham, and expertly rolled himself a cigarette.

Tim stood there with two milk pails on each arm and the usual surprised grin on his comical Irish face. "Well, Kennie," he said, "how do you like trained-nursin'?"

"All right," said Ken, shamefacedly.

"When I seen her go for that fence," continued Tim, "I didn't really believe she'd try it—then I sez to meself, crazy people you c'n lock up in asylums—crazy horses you gotta let kill themselves."

Ken slowly lifted his head and stared at Tim's dark red grinning face.

Suddenly all the odds and ends of thought which had confused him came clear in his mind. Loco—it wasn't just loco, the way you said, Oh, you're nuts. It meant wrong in the head—lunatic asylums—crazy people—Flicka wasn't right.

Horror went through him like zig-zags of lightning.

"She sure is a wild woman," said Ross seriously.

Ken looked from Tim to Ross. "Do you think she's really—" The word that had always been so easy to say now stuck in his throat. He brought it out with difficulty—"loco?"

"She sure is."

Non-Violence Can Conquer

By Mahatma Gandhi

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

My principle of non-violence means, in general terms, that men will deliberately shun all weapons of slaughter and the use of force of any kind whatsoever.

The most familiar comment on this principle is that we who believe in it are naive fools without realistic knowledge of the world. The criticism is leveled particularly against me, since it is my name that is most commonly associated with non-violence.

It is said that if I were not such a simpleton, deliberately closing my eyes to conditions as they really are, I would know that non-violence can never hope to prevail over such powerful and brutal forces as those represented by Nazi Germany and Japan, which are the essence of unscrupulous armed might. Non-violence, it is said, may be all very well in theory, but in practice, it is too hopelessly idealistic to have any chance of success in this modern world of armored divisions, parachute troops, dive bombers.

Are we naive fools? Is non-violence a sort of dreamy wishful thinking that has never had and can never have any real success against the heavy odds of modern armies and the unlimited application of force and frightfulness?

India's recent history gives the answer to this. We have won considerable victories. We have faced powerful armed forces and we have not been swept out of the way. We still exist; belief in non-violence still exists. Does not the fact that only a single victory has been won prove that non-violence, developed to greater perfection, could win greater victories against greater armed forces?

But let me describe the true follower of non-violence—the true non-violent soldier as I see him.

Ability to Die.

The chief requisite for a soldier in a violent army is physical fitness. But in the non-violent army, the chief requisite is the ability to die for your belief. This depends not on physical but on mental fitness. Therefore, this army can welcome to its ranks old men, women, youths, the blind, the sick and the lame. Thus it follows that the non-violent army has a much greater mass base; it consists not merely of a certain section of the population but of all sections.

The non-violent army has no use for weapons. It beats its swords into plowshares and its spears into pruning hooks. Whereas, the soldier of the violent army is trained in the use of violence by being taught how to shoot, the non-violent soldier comes through nursing the sick, saving those in danger at risk of his own life, and cultivating the capacity for sacrifice of the highest type.

He must have the resourcefulness and capacity to plunge into seemingly impenetrable scenes of rioting, the will and the desire to go to the rescue of men trapped in burning houses, and the fearlessness to plunge into a flood to save people drowning there.

There have been those in India who had weapons but who threw them away after embracing non-violence and offered themselves freely and unafraid to bullets and raw steel.

This is the true non-violent soldier.

I have heard it said that the non-violent movement has had some acceptance in India only because the Indian people are cowards who have no weapons and therefore are incapable of defending themselves; that non-violence, therefore, suits them very well indeed.

On the evidence I have given, are the Indian people cowards? Would a coward have the courage to bare his breast to a rifle? Is there any army in the world that could prevail over such soldiers? Having no fear themselves, could Hitler, could Japan conquer them?

Judge if we are naive fools; if there is no courage in our hearts! Judge if we who believe in non-violence have no practical conception of how to overcome the evils that exist in today's world!

The non-violent soldier recognizes no such thing as an external enemy. He has nothing but compassion for those who consider themselves to be his enemies. He believes that no man is intentionally wicked, that there is no man who does not have the faculty to discriminate between right and wrong, and that if that faculty were to be fully developed, it would mature into non-violence. No men can remain enemies in the face of such a treatment and such a spirit. They must ultimately be absorbed by this great movement and become part of it.

GAS-LESS AUTO RACE

An automobile race was staged in Brazil recently which should interest gas-less Americans. Thirty-two cars took part, and not one of them used a drop of gasoline.

Each car was equipped with a charcoal burning apparatus known as "gasogene," producing a charcoal gas whose combustion takes the place of the combustion of gasoline in the ordinary automobile engine.

These devices have been so successful in Brazil that they are being produced at the rate of 40 a day, selling for about $200 each. Some of the units are capable of generating a thousand horsepower, and are used even on the inter-city buses between Santos and Sao Paulo.

Brazil has practically no petroleum resources of her own.

TANKERS DELIVER PLANES

Everybody knows that bombers have long been delivered to England under their own power. But the big problem has been to deliver fighter planes, which have had to be taken apart, crated, then reassembled on the other side.

Now, however, a new system has been devised whereby U. S. tankers are carrying fighters on deck—20 to each tanker—and setting them down a few days later in England.

The War Shipping administration is keeping the army "cleaned out of fighters" by this method of delivery, and is rapidly building up the strength of the Eighth Air Forces command which is battering Germany.

Note: PT boats are also being delivered to England on the decks of tankers.

NO GERMAN SAUSAGE

The diplomats' grapevine reports that the German food supply is running low. A new cut has been made in the meat ration. This, coming at a time when the greatest muscle must be exerted in defense of the Vaterland, is expected to be a severe blow to German morale.

The basic ration of meat for normal uses was 400 grams at this time last year. But now the ration has been cut to 250 grams—which is about half a pound per week, including fat and bone. An effort is being made to compensate this reduction by the substitution of cheese and groats (hulled and crushed oats and wheat). During the winter, however, it was reduced to 300 grams. In the spring the cut was partially restored, when the ration was moved up to 350 grams, recognizing the necessity of more nourishment with the coming of the season of greater military activity.

ARMY AND GOLD MINING

American soldiers who spent dreary winters tracking through the Arctic forest to build the Alcan highway to Alaska frequently saw the sparkle of gold in the stream beds, and wanted to stake out claims for peacetime development. They were not allowed to do so.

Now, however, civilian construction crews are coming along the same trail, and are staking out claims for the gold which U. S. soldiers could not touch.

Boys from almost every state were sent to Alaska on that pioneering job—cutting a road through tall timber where none but Indians had passed before. They worked from Dawson Creek, in Alberta, to Fairbanks, Alaska, but the place where they saw the gleaming gold was in the Yukon, near Whitehorse.

At first, there was little time to think about private projects, for one battalion was racing against another to complete its 20-mile stretch of highway. But when a lull came in the work, the men asked permission to try their luck at panning gold. The officers, however, ruled this out.

Another season has rolled around, and things have changed. The pioneer road is being replaced by a permanent highway, built by big construction companies—Elliott Construction Co., and Becketel, Price and Callahan.

These companies have mining engineers attached to the construction gangs, and they are not bound by military discipline.

Note: Finally the army has modified its regulations to permit a little amateur gold panning by soldiers in Alaska, for recreational purposes. This activity will be in the same class with fishing, to give the soldiers sport in their spare time.

Washington wives with backs aching from work in their Victory gardens wish they had top sergeants to hoe their gardens as do the wives of high-ranking army officers at Ft. Myer across the Potomac.

Cautions for Home Canners

Housewives doing home canning with wartime jar caps are cautioned to follow implicitly the instructions of the cap manufacturers if they wish to avoid unhappy experiences and waste in their patriotic effort to conserve. Spoilage of food and breakage of jars is certain to result, if instructions are not followed to the letter. Proper methods and careful canning will insure excellent results, more important in the present food situation than at any other time.

The Glass-Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap, a wartime product developed to conserve metal, requires careful use, according to the home service departments of fruit jar manufacturers. This cap consists of a metal band, glass lid and rubber ring. With these three widely varied materials making up its component parts, the cap must be used according to important but easily followed instructions. First of all, the cap is not recommended for, and must not be used in, oven canning.

If the food is processed (cooked in a jar), one inch of space must be left in the top of the jar when filled, in order to allow room for expansion. If an open kettle is used a half-inch of space must be left in the top of the jar.

The next step is to place the rubber around the projection on the bottom side of the lid, and the lid must then be placed so that the rubber lies between it and the top edge of the jar. All jars on which top-seal closures, either glass or metal, are used must have smooth-top edges.

The band is then applied tightly and immediately loosened slightly about one-quarter of a turn. Bands must fit loosely during the processing or cooking. If an open kettle is used, the bands are to be screwed tight as soon as the jar is filled. After the processing is completed the bands are screwed tight to complete the seal. The bands may be removed twelve hours after the canning operation. At no time should the filled jars be turned up-side-down.

The housewife who takes no chances on variance from any one of these simple but important steps is assured of success and the enjoyment of the delicious flavor of home canned foods this winter.—Adv.

Australian Aborigines

Although the white colonization of Australia began in 1788, the majority of its aborigines still do not know how to cultivate land, make clothes or build a shelter other than a windbreak, says Collier's. These people have always been looked upon as little more than animals. In fact, up to 40 years ago, a settler merely required a permit to "shoot, poison or otherwise kill" them at will.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

At a Navy yard, 3000 workers travel daily 60 to 85 miles round trip by automobile—a good reason why war workers must have tires.

Tire users now restricted because of the rubber shortage will have de luxe road traveling conditions open to them in post-war days if State and Federal highway plans materialize. Already twelve States have approved building express highways of tomorrow when peace comes. Seven others are considering such plans.

A truck tire that is overloaded 50 per cent will only deliver 44.5 per cent of its mileage expectancy.

Editor of the Orland Park Herald:

Dear Sir: I wish to thank the Ladies Auxiliary of Post 526 and the Orland Park Womans Club for the most welcome gifts received while training at the Santa Ana Air Base pre-flight school and Polaris Flight academy.

I am happy to report that I am in good health and extremely happy.

We fly the Basic trainer BT 13, here which is an all metal trainer made by Vultee.

Polaris used to be an RAF school so instead of Barracks we live in cottages and there are two swimming pools which with the California sun make the stay here almost perfect.

Seventy of the boys here have asked for pursuit ships when they complete their training. I hope to be included in the single engine group.

Many thanks, Aviation Cadet Roy Glahn, Sq. 14 Polaris Flight Academy, Lancaster, Cal.

Mr. William Semmler Editor: Orland Park Herald Mokena, Ill.

Dear Sir: Recently I have received a few issues of the Orland Park Herald.

By the content of the published letters from the local boys in the Service of which I am a most avid reader, I conclude that the paper is mailed to us weekly through the Orland Park Post of the American Legion and also you and your staff. I wish therefore to thank all those responsible for my receiving your friendly paper and assure you that I enjoy and appreciate this gesture of good will. Probably, now that you have my correct address, I will receive the issues as regularly as could be expected under the circumstances, I feel that I have been cheated in having missed so many of those intended for me.

Also from the letters of "our boys" I realize that I too have been the intended recipient of gift packages from various local organizations. Due to some discrepancy in address or the hazards of shipping I haven't been fortunate enough to receive them but I do appreciate the good intentions.

Up until just recently I have been entirely unaware of all this kindly attention directed at me so please, all of you, don't think that I'm the thankless boor that I've no doubt appeared to be.

Any of you fellows in the service who might read this should know that a letter from you will be very welcome and promptly answered. (might send you the recipe for a "New Guinea Cocktail.")

In closing I might add that it is truly encouraging to read of the splendid support "our community is contributing towards the war effort.

Sincerely, Jim T. Pomeroy, Jr. Cpl. Jim T. Pomeroy, 38040473, 35th Fighter Control Sqdn. 35th Fighter Group, APO 929, care postmaster, San Francisco, Cal.

Orland Girls 4H News

The monthly meeting of the Orland Girls 4H club was held July 9, at the home of Marilyn Pihl. The roll was called with three members absent, Alice Ihlenfeld, Jo Ann and Navonne Lahti.

We discussed the idea of a lawn party and decided that in order to save gas we would combine it with our September meeting to be held at Dorothy Yunker's home.

Mrs. Ihlenfeld told the girls that their club dresses were to be finished by the next meeting Wednesday, August 11 because of the Style Show August 13.

Demonstrations were given as follows: Dorothy Yunker, continuous bound placket, Marilyn Pihl, hemming of neckline, Betty Stoner, bound button hole. The meeting was adjourned and a quiz program presented after which refreshments were served.

Betty Stoner, Reporter A dinner was given for Jack McAleer by his parents as a farewell party. Jack left for the navy July 8th. The guests were as follows:

Mrs. J. C. Taylor and Kenneth, Misses Lorraine Taylor, Laurine McAleer, Anna McAleer, Jennie McAleer, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jorgensen and son Tony, Carolyn Brennan, Mrs. A. Reilly and son Bud. Jack's new address is: Jack McAleer, Co. 524-43 B. N. 11 R. 3 Camp Bannion, U. S. N. T. S., Farragut, Idaho.

Barney Moore sends word from the navy training station at Camp

Farragut, Idaho that he is undergoing intensive training.

Folks of the Orland Park Community are urged to participate in the "Records for Fighting Men" drive which is being staged all over the country by the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary. Bring or send in your old, discarded phonograph records, no matter how old or badly worn or broken they are. They will be used to make new recordings to be sent to our boys in the fighting lines. Bring your old records to either Creer's, Loebe's or Schmadeke's or notify Mrs. Elsie Yunker, phone Orland 17 or S. S. Knox, Phone Orland 100 W.

To accommodate the farmers and other workers, the Orland Park ration board will open at 8:30 a. m., instead of 9 a. m., as formerly and will remain open until 9 p. m.
